Dear Friend,

For many, SENG is a resource first approached during a time of urgent need. Caring experts, information, compassion and community – the hallmarks of SENG – are both a lifeline and an ongoing support for gifted individuals, their families and the educators and health professionals that care for them. SENG is committed to expanding services and developing new programs to meet the social and emotional needs of gifted individuals.

You can help.

Please visit www.sengifted.org to view our new "Program and Funding Wish List." and to learn about key projects including:

- Expansion of SENG Model Parent Groups,
- Continuing education for health professionals,
- Outreach to diverse populations, and
- Technologies for delivering more information to parents and educators.

On the SENG website, be sure to read more about Stevie's Story (and consider sharing your own SENG experience) at our "What SENG Means to Me" webpage. Experience our new "Audio Library." And if you do not yet receive our free newsletter, The SENG Update, register today to enjoy monthly articles and the latest SENG news.

Please consider supporting SENG now. Your generosity at any level will speed delivery of programs and services that are so vitally needed in the gifted community. When you donate using the enclosed envelope, or using our online form, you will make a difference!

Warmly,

Amy Price
Executive Director

P.S. Please excuse the simplicity of this mailing. You can trust that SENG takes great care to limit operating costs and directs your contribution to vital programs.
